Why join a nonprofit board? You're busy. Volunteer time takes away from work time and time with friends and family. Why do it?

Many people volunteer for nonprofit boards because they want to support a cause that is meaningful to them. Many want to give something back to the communities in which they live or to communities that have been generous to them in the past. Many want to set an example for their children.

Regardless of the reason one volunteers, committed board members stand to gain both personally and professionally from participation on nonprofit boards.

You qualify if you are:

- Understanding of our community and its needs
- Passionate about helping kids learn
- Skilled in business or nonprofit sector
- Willing to commit time for board meetings, planning sessions and special events
- A team player

- A minimum of two applicants will be elected this year to the Foundation Board
- We are specifically in need of additional business expertise
- Directors serve a three-year term
- Eight regularly scheduled Board meetings a year
